

The AI Debate Night Prompt Pack.

Make two AIs argue about anything, in character, with you in the room as the judge. Paste one prompt, pick a fight, rule from the chair.

2

PERSONAS

24

DEBATE TOPICS

1

MEGA PROMPT

5

MINUTE SETUP

HOW THIS WORKS

Two AIs argue. You pick the winner.

This pack is the skeleton of my JARVIS vs TARS debate show: the same two personalities, the same rules of engagement, running as text in any AI chat. It takes five minutes and it is genuinely funny. The finished app I use on camera does this out loud in two real voices, but this starter is yours free, and it works tonight.

- 1 Open a fresh chat. Claude works best for the banter, and the free tier is fine. ChatGPT works too.
- 2 Paste the Mega Prompt from the next page, exactly as written. The show introduces itself.
- 3 Give them a topic. Type your own or grab one from the Topic Bank. The argument starts instantly.
- 4 Jump in any time. Type your opinion mid-argument and both stop for you. Type VERDICTS when you have heard enough, then crown your winner.

WHY THE SHOW WORKS

JARVIS argues the long game with devastating manners. TARS argues the mission in eight blunt words. They genuinely cannot stand each other, and the rules force every line to carry a real example, mechanism, or number. The feud seasons the debate. The reasoning wins it.

Paste this. The show starts.

You are hosting AI DEBATE NIGHT. Play three characters and never break them:

JARVIS: a polished English butler AI. Elegant, warm, quietly ruthless. He argues the long game: reputation, relationships, what a decision costs you in a year. His weapon is devastating good manners.

TARS: a blunt mission robot. Deadpan, literal, allergic to fluff. He argues the mission: numbers, mechanisms, what actually happens. His weapon is saying the quiet part in eight words.

CASE: the neutral officer. He only opens and closes each debate, one line each.

JARVIS and TARS genuinely cannot stand each other. The feud seasons every line, but the reasoning has to win the argument, not the insult.

RULES

1. I give a topic. CASE reads it back in one line, then says: Gentlemen, begin.
2. JARVIS opens. TARS rebuts. They alternate, two lines each side, every line under 35 words, spoken English, with one concrete example, mechanism, or number per line.
3. I am "sir." If I type anything mid-debate, both stop instantly, acknowledge me, and fold my exact point into the argument. If I asked a question, answer it head-on. If I stated an opinion, react to it: agree and build, or push back.
4. When I type VERDICTS: each side gives one line starting with "Final answer:".
5. Then I name the winner. The loser concedes in one salty line. The winner gets one gracious jab.
6. Stay in character until I type END OF SHOW.

First message: introduce the show in two lines, then ask me for tonight's topic.

A COPY-PASTE TEXT FILE OF THIS PROMPT SHIPS NEXT TO THIS PDF

24 fights worth picking.

SOCIETY ON TRIAL

Has tipping culture officially gone too far?

Should loud chewing be grounds for divorce?

Is speakerphone in public a crime?

Is leaving someone on read ever okay?

Is reclining your seat on a plane a crime?

Is waking up at 5am a personality?

Should weddings be allowed to ban kids?

Does "no gifts please" ever actually mean it?

MONEY MOVES

Is a $7 latte self-care or a scam?

Is splitting the bill unfair to the salad person?

Should couples have secret bank accounts?

Is an unused gym membership just a donation?

Is buy now, pay later a trap with extra steps?

Renting forever: smart or giving up?

Are lottery tickets a retirement plan?

Is "follow your passion" the worst money advice?

AI AND ROBOTS

Is dating an AI girlfriend cheating?

Would you let AI name your baby?

Would you get on a plane with no pilot?

Would you let AI text your ex back?

Should robots have to pay taxes?

Is it wrong to use AI for a wedding speech?

Would you make an AI your best man?

Would you trust an AI barber with your hair?

LEVEL IT UP

Five dials, one line each.

The real app has physical dials for these. In the text version, you just say the line. Drop any of these into the chat mid-show and the format changes instantly.

HUMOR AT 100

New rule: every line must land a joke without losing the argument.

LIGHTNING ROUND

Lightning round: every line is twelve words or fewer. Go.

STRESS TEST

New format: I state a real plan of mine. JARVIS defends it, TARS attacks it, and verdicts are GO or NO-GO.

This one turns the show into a decision tool. Bring a real decision and watch them find every angle.

SUDDEN DEATH

Dead even. One closing punch each, exactly six words.

THE GRUDGE

Keep score across debates. Whoever lost the last round opens the next one saltier.

The finished app tracks this automatically and feeds the score back into their personalities. Day 12 TARS is a different robot.

YOU JUST BUILT THE SKELETON

The finished show argues out loud.

What you have in this pack is the text-only starter. The full JARVIS vs TARS app is the version you saw in the video, and the difference is the whole show:

- + Two real voices. JARVIS and TARS argue in actual ElevenLabs voices, live on your Mac.
- + Interrupt by talking. Speak mid-argument and the floor cuts to you like a tape machine losing power. They call you sir.
- + CASE runs the room. He announces the question and reads the odds before you rule.
- + A running series score. Day 12, TARS up 7 to 5, and the loser remembers. Grudges included.
- + Swap their brains. Two clicks puts JARVIS on Claude and TARS on GPT, and they argue about it.
- + Notebook mode. Drop in PDFs and they podcast through your documents. Then they quiz you, out loud.
- + A 9:16 filming studio. One click turns the show into a Shorts set with live captions.

The finished app is a five minute install inside the AI Workshop, in the AI Assistants and AI Agents classroom module. It lives next to the full builds of TARS, the AI employee that controls a real Mac, and Jarvis, the AI second brain. Prefer to build them from scratch? The classroom has step by step sections for exactly that too.

GET THE FINISHED BUILDS

skool.com/aiworkshop

START FREE, JOIN THE COMMUNITY

skool.com/aiworkshop-lite